Chicken Breast (Whole)

Chicken breast is a popular meat in Brazil and is frequently used in various dishes, according to multiple sources. It's often seasoned and cooked in a variety of ways, including grilling, frying, and stewing.

4

Chicken Breast (Half)

A "half chicken breast" refers to one half of a whole chicken breast, essentially a single breast cut. In Brazil, it's commonly sold as a separate cut and is often referred to as "meia peito de frango" (half chicken breast). This is a standard way to purchase chicken breast, and recipes often call for "chicken breast" without specifying the whole breast or a half.

5

Chicken Mid-Joint Wings

Chicken mid-joint wings, also known as wingettes or flats, are the middle portion of a chicken wing, located between the drumette and the wing tip. In Brazil, chicken mid-joint wings are a popular and readily available product, often found in frozen or fresh formats.

Frozen Hen/Chicken (light)

Frozen whole chickens, often referred to as frozen hens, are a common product exported from Brazil. Brazil is a major exporter of poultry, and frozen whole chickens are a significant part of its export trade. They are known for their quality and affordability, making them a popular choice. These can be chosen either Male or Female depending on weight choice.

7

Frozen Hen (Heavy)

Thigh with Drumstick

Chicken thighs are the upper part of the chicken's leg, the part from the knee up to the leg joint. This is dark meat. And the type of muscle it is made of is considered "worked". This means that it is more tender and more flavorful. And they are generally cheaper to buy than chicken breasts. This will be a mix of Thigh and Drumstick.

9

Chicken Drumstick

A drumstick is produced by cutting a whole leg through the joint between the tibia and the femur. The thigh is removed. The drumstick consists of the drumstick and patella.

Chicken Feet

Chicken feet, or Fèng zhuǎ, are served all over the world but are especially popular in Chinese cuisine. The feet are deep-fried or steamed to prep the skin so it puffs up nicely. Then they are stewed or simmered in a sauce flavored with various spices

Chicken Paws

Chicken paws are the lower parts of the chicken's body that the animal uses for walking. Chicken paws have a richer, fuller, and deeper flavor profile compared to other parts of the chicken such as the breast.
